For more than 27 years, the Economic Progress Institute (EPI) has been Rhode Island's trusted source for research, analysis, coalition building, and advocacy to advance racial and economic justice. We turn data into action, bridging rigorous analysis with broad coalition leadership to win real changes for families and communities.

2026 is a pivotal year. Federal policy changes under H.R.1, state budget decisions, and a gubernatorial election will directly impact Rhode Island's workforce, employers, and long-term economic stability. EPI ensures leaders have trusted, data-driven insight to navigate these shifts and build a resilient, competitive state economy.

Community and corporate partners will gain

Strategic Insight

Alignment with credible, equity-centered research that advances opportunity and workforce stability.

Visibility & Leadership

Access to trusted economic and budget analysis shaping statewide policy decisions

Workforce & Economic Stability

Tools and briefings that help employers understand how public policy affects labor markets, healthcare access, childcare, and employee financial security.

Demonstrated Impact

A 27-year track record translating research into meaningful policy outcomes that strengthen Rhode Island's economic foundation.
